

Your one-page symptom tracker

One month, one sheet. Shade a box each evening — it takes about fifteen seconds. After four to six weeks the shape of your pattern becomes visible, and a pattern is what turns “I just feel off” into something a doctor can work with.

SEVERITY ☐ None ☐ Low ☐ Moderate ☐ High ☐ Extreme Month: _____

Symptom	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20	21	22	23	24	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
CYCLE
Period
Spotting
Cramping
TEMPERATURE & SLEEP
Hot flushes
Night sweats
Trouble falling asleep
Waking at night
MOOD & MIND
Low mood
Anxiety / on edge
Irritability
Brain fog
Word-finding trouble
BODY
Fatigue
Headaches
Joint aches
Palpitations
Bloating
Breast tenderness

Cycle days: mark the first day of bleeding with a dot in the Period row. Irregular is still data — the gaps matter as much as the days.

Why one page? Because a tracker you actually fill in beats a detailed one you abandon in week two. If this becomes a habit, the full SymptomSage bundle carries twelve months of these plus a Google Sheets version that colours itself in.

Questions worth asking

Appointments are short and symptoms are long. Write your answers in before you go — the point is not to remember everything under pressure, it is to arrive with it already written down.

About what is happening

1. Based on my symptoms and my age, does this look like perimenopause?
.....
2. Is there any value in testing my hormone levels, or will they fluctuate too much to be useful?
.....
3. What else could explain this — thyroid, iron, anything worth ruling out first?
.....

About options

4. What are my options, including the ones you would not normally raise first?
.....
5. For the symptom bothering me most, what would you try first and why?
.....
6. How long before I should expect to notice a difference, and what would tell us it is not working?
.....

About what happens next

7. When should I come back, and what should I be tracking in the meantime?
.....
8. If this does not improve, is there someone who specialises in this you would refer me to?
.....

BRING WITH YOU

- ☐ Your tracker — at least three or four weeks of it
- ☐ Your cycle dates, however irregular
- ☐ The one symptom you would fix first if you could only pick one
- ☐ Anything you have already tried, and whether it helped
- ☐ A list of current medications and supplements